From publisher Glory for advising culturally diverse, the sixth edition of Derald Sue and David Sue have reached new heights with this latest edition of their classic text, and they are not disappointing. In parallel with the evolving nature of multiculturalism itself, the book examines the last topics critical to the field, and generously expands the rest. The reader is given the opportunity to personally reflect, analyze and apply the material at every turn. Readers will make it public that this text more than meets its high expectations. - Beth A. Durodoye, Ed.D., Professor of Counseling, University of Texas at San Antonio With its latest updates and changes, Advising Culturally Diverse remains relevant today as its first edition. Sue and Sue continue to maintain the integrity of content and continue to expand and incorporate progressive perspectives within multicultural and social justice literature. Their inclusion of the most relevant topical areas in this area, with personal stories and examples, makes this publication a comprehensive guide that provides fundamentally critical materials, with real examples and practical ideas to implement in the context of counseling and psychotherapy. I have no doubt that this 6th edition will remain the most used book in the set-up class across the country. - Miquel E. Gallardo, Psy.D., Associate Professor of Psychology, Graduate School of Education and Psychology of Pepperdine University Sue and Sue, through their text, have found an essential way to promote meaningful dialogue about the role of culture and experience in the counseling process. Their treatment of contextual uniqueness that clients bring in a counseling relationship will no doubt serve to help counseling students and practicing counselors alike to find their sense of self throughout their professional journey. - Thomas J. Hernandez, Ed.D., LMHC Associate Professor and Chairman, Department of Advisory Education, College at Brockport Dr. Derald Wing Sue has done it again! This latest installment in The Advising Culturally Diverse series is a phenomenal piece of work that is comprehensive in its scope, penetrating his ideas, and pragmatic in the way he teaches the reader how to navigate the way the culture of our discipline and profession struggles so deeply. The path to multicultural understanding and competence is one of the most significant challenges in the life of a professional psychologist and consultant. Indeed, the landscape of progress towards a more culturally competent and socially honest profession is littered with stones of stagnation, stones of resignation and the dust of denial of the elements of psychological and advisory learning and practice that are necessary for mastering in their professional development and development. This text is as good a roadmap as there is in the profession and those who make the choice to not just read the page chapter, but also to understand and accept the principles and practices that are outlined within, will find its way to multicultural understanding and competence much more useful, enriching and fulfilling. This book is just an amazing resource and I have the honor and pride to endorse it! Thomas A. Parham, Ph.D., Vice Chancellor for Students, University of California, Irvine; Distinguished Psychologist, Association of Black Psychologists This an extended and vastly revised 6th edition of one true classical text of multicultural counseling, Advising Culturally Diverse, continues its tradition of defining the field and compiling a pre-emptive course to prepare a new decade of consultants and therapists for culturally competent practices in our increasingly diverse and globally interconnected society. Current lighting is the most artistic, comprehensive and in-depth, and writing throughout the text is clear, clear and interesting. If only one book was to be read in an entire master's or doctoral program in counseling or psychology, it should be advising culturally diverse. - Joseph G. Ponterotto, Ph.D., Professor and Practitioner multicultural psychologist at Fordham University #1 co-editor or co-author of the Multicultural Counseling Handbook, Multicultural Assessment Handbook, Guide to Racial/Ethnic Minority Research Advice VitalSource is a leading provider of online textbooks and educational materials.
